Dust Flies as Abner Cast Kicks Up Heels; 3 Depts. Aid Production

There's lots of whoopin' and stompin' in this number from "Li'l Abner," as the exuberant Dogpatchers welcome Abner back from Washington, D.C.

By Mary Jane Cooper

The dust has really been flying on the "Li'l Abner" set this past week. Last-minute set-painting, dance rehearsing and prop-hunting completed, members of the cast and staff settled down to put on two performances.

"Li'l Abner" went on at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday for the Omaha Rotary Club. Last night's performance was the first one open to the general public. The curtain will rise tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 p.m. A special performance will be given Saturday afternoon for all high school students and teachers participating in the annual Fine Arts Festival sponsored by the University.

A combined effort of the music, art and women's physical education departments for the play have been under way for several weeks.

With set design by Miss Jane Andersen, Assistant Professor of Art, construction and painting was the job of the play production class. Technical direction was by C. Harold Bush.

Music was provided by a special 15-piece show orchestra, under the direction of Dr. James B. Peterson, professor and head of the music department. The regular University orchestra was assisted by the dance band of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, honorary music fraternity for men. The chorus was trained by Melvin Olson, Assistant Professor of Music.

Choreography was by Linda Dooley, Instructor of Women's P. E. of the 32 cast members, nearly all were involved in one dance sequence.

Costumes were shipped from New York, arriving just last Sunday.

CRAM COURSE NO. 2: BIOLOGY

The grisly shadow of final exams looms over us, so today in this column instead of merry quips and homely saws, you will find hard facts—quick cram courses to help you through the ordeal ahead.

Last week I gave you a rapid survey of Modern European History. Now let us turn to Biology.

Biology is divided into several phyla, or classes. First is the protozoa, or one-celled animal. All life stems from the one-celled animal. Over a space of millions of years, life slowly evolved until today we have animals with as many as 12 cells. Some larger mammals claim they have 14 to 16 cells, but you know how larger mammals lie.

The second class of animals is the periphra—a shadowy category that borders often on the vegetable. Take, for example, the sponge. The sponge is definitely an animal. The washcloth, on the other hand, is definitely not.

Next we come to the arthropoda, or insects. Most people, of course, find insects fairly repulsive—and yet, if one will but look, there is exquisite beauty in the insect world. Who does not remember the lovely insect poems of William Cullen Sigafos—such enchanting lyrics as Tumbling Along with the Tumbling Tumblebug, Fly Gently, Sweet Aphid, and Gnats My Mother Taught Me. Mr. Sigafos has been inactive since the invention of DDT.

Our next category is the mollusca—lobsters, shrimp, and the like. Lobsters are generally found under rocky projections on the ocean bottom. Shrimp are generally found in a circle around a small bowl containing cocktail sauce. Marlboro Cigarettes are generally found at any tobacco counter or vending machine.

What have Marlboro Cigarettes got to do with biology? Well, actually, not very much. It must be remembered, however, that the makers of Marlboro pay me for writing this column, and they are inclined to get surly if I fail to mention their product.

Mind you, I enjoy singing the praises of Marlboro—and so will you once you try that flavorful tobacco, that fine filter which lets the flavor come through undiminished. It is a great pleasure to smoke Marlboros and a great pleasure to write about them, but sometimes, I must confess, I find it a bit difficult to work the commercial into the column. Some years ago, for example, I did a piece about Alexander the Great, and, believe you me, it took a heap of stretching to drop in a plug for Marlboro. The way I finally managed it was to have Alexander go to the Oracle at Delphi and say, "Oracle, I have conquered the world and tasted all its pleasures, but somehow I am not content. I know that somewhere there must be a joy I have not yet experienced." To which the Oracle replied,

There is no great difficulty distinguishing the two

"Yes, Alexander, there is such a joy, but, alas, the time is not yet. I refer to Marlboro Cigarettes which will not be invented for another 2500 years." Whereupon Alexander fell into a sulk from which he never recovered. . . Well sir, there is no question I sold a lot of cigarettes with this ingenious commercial, but the gang down at the American Academy of Arts and Letters gave me a mighty good razzing, you may be sure.

But I digress. Back to biology, and the most advanced phylum of all—the chordata, or vertebrates. There are two kinds of vertebrates—those whose backbones run horizontally and those whose backbones run vertically. Generally, there is no great difficulty in distinguishing the two varieties. A fish, for instance, has a horizontal backbone, and a man has a vertical backbone. Occasionally, however, you run into a problem—like a fish who swims upright and a man who spends most of his time in the sack. How, in such a case, do you tell one from another? Science struggled with this sticky question for centuries, but finally Sigafos of M.I.T. came up with a brilliantly simple answer. Offer the creature a Marlboro. If it is a fish, it will refuse. If it is Homo sapiens, it will accept. In fact, the more sapient, the quicker the acceptance.

The makers of Marlboro, upright vertebrates all, remind you that their fine cigarettes are available in pack or box wherever cigarettes are sold in any of the 50 states.

Scholarships Based On Regents' Exams

The Regents' Exams will be given to high school students April 19 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Conference Center Auditorium and Room 438 in the Administration Building.

High school students in the upper one-fourth of their class are eligible to take the test.

The results will determine who will receive the full tuition scholarships which are renewable each year if the students maintain a 3.00 average.

Twenty scholarships will be given next year with three each going to Benson, Central, North, South and Tech.

High Schools Take Part In OU Fine Arts Festival

The Omaha University campus will be the scene tomorrow of the University's seventh annual Fine Arts Festival.

The purpose of the festival is to acquaint area secondary school students and teachers with the various avenues of expression in the fine arts field and to show them how these avenues can be explored at OU.

More than 500 juniors and seniors and 90 teachers from 20 high schools have been invited to this event. Each will have the opportunity to participate in two of seven "interest group" meetings and to attend a special performance of "Li'l Abner" by the University Players.

The following interest groups (chairmen in parentheses) will meet to assist in accomplishing the Festival's aims: modern acting techniques (Dr. Edwin Clark), theatre production (Mr. Harold Bush), TV and radio (Mr. Paul Borge), public speaking and debate (Mr. Donald Orban), modern dance (Mrs. Linda Dooley), music (Mr. Raymond Trenchholm), and art (Mr. John Blackwell).

OU faculty members Jack Malik and Donald Orban are co-chairmen of the festival.

Office Seeker's Dilemma—To Run or Not to Run

By Paul Beavers

Two Omaha men who are seeking their party's nomination for Congress in the May 15 primary were forced to leave their jobs to enter the political battles.

That is not too unusual. Two years ago another Omahan was asked to resign from his job in order to make a bid for Congress. He resigned and was defeated.

It makes one wonder whether seeking political office, and all that goes with it, is not one of the characteristics some institutions want in their personnel.

There seems to be an inconsistency.

The cry is constantly heard that in a democracy the public should elect "the best man . . . the most qualified," etc.

Why, then, does an institution often say, "It's fine to run, but not while you are associated with us?"

Heard, too, is: "The most qualified persons won't run for political jobs."

That's not too difficult to understand. There are many reasons that a person would dodge a political race—money, chance of defeat, etc.

But what good does it do to urge "qualified" persons to enter politics when it may cost

By Mike Dugan

A public office is a full-time job if it is to be justified by a responsible office holder.

Mr. Beavers implies that it is unfair for a man to have to give up his job to run for public office. The principle of this practice involves more than mere spite or other superficial reasons.

An employer realizes that an employee cannot do justice to his position within the company if he has another full-time interest. This is the case of a public office holder who tries to hold down two jobs.

If an office seeker has any intention of doing the best job he can for the public he serves, then he will cease to "dabble" and concentrate on getting the best results with maximum effort.

Conversely, why should an employer retain a man who no longer puts forth the productive effort that he was hired to do?

Should that same employer retain a man on salary who is sacrificing the quality and/or quantity of his work to campaign for a political party whose views and purposes oppose the best interests of the company he works for?

A case in point is a medium in mass communications such as a newspaper who publishes its political policy.

It could seriously lower the believability rating of such a newspaper and possibly hamper its circulation if it retained an employee whose public life represented a view contrary to the medium's political policy.

This would be especially significant if that employee were widely known as an employee of that medium.

Most institutions and various companies have a policy governing these circumstances.

In the case of this institution, the policy is that any faculty member who runs for public office must take a leave of absence.

This is the policy and the individual who applies for a position at this institution is aware of this when he applies for a position.

If he does not feel that he wants to respect this policy—he doesn't have to take the job. The same choice is given at any other institution or firm.

In summation of this point of view, a man is not "qualified" to fill an office of public responsibility if he must divide his time between two jobs. A sacrifice must be made—both jobs cannot be done well at the same time.

It would be impossible to air and qualify all the discrepancies of the various policies held by the many institutions who attempt to deal with these problems.

The choice of which activity or occupation is more important is left to the individual. Then their jobs, even "temporarily?"

Indeed, "qualified" persons should be urged to seek political posts, but not at the risk of losing their jobs.

Young Republicans Are Mixed Group

By Paul Beavers

The president of the Omaha University Young Republicans is a registered Democrat.

E. H. (Hollis) Merritt is head of the YR group on campus even though the Douglas County Election Commissioner's office lists him on the other side of the political fence—a Democrat.

YR sponsor William Utley said, "I had heard that (Merritt was a Democrat)."

"As far as I am concerned," Utley said, "I am all for it if he (Merritt) is willing to work and keep it (the YR's) going. He has been working very hard."

Petitions for candidates expecting to run in the all-school elections on May 2 must be turned in by 4:45 on Wednesday, April 18. This pertains to all students planning to run for Student Council representatives, for the Board of Student Publications and for Maie Day Princess. Petition forms may be picked in the Dean of Student's office.

Yes, dear, I know the roof leaks

...but only when it rains. Now that you mention it, dear, it has been a rather wet season. Yes, I know the Fridleys have a new roof and that the Eddlemans just put in a recreation room. No, I don't suppose they are independently wealthy. But dear, just because... yes, dear. I do know that the roof leaks. That's what I've been trying to tell you, and maybe I can, now that you seem to have run out of breath. That's a little joke, dear. Yes, dear. I'm sorry, dear. But the thing is, I'm having the roof fixed on Monday. How? It's simple, dear. I stopped in at the U. S. National Bank on Friday, and in just a few minutes, they approved a home improvement loan so that we can not only fix the roof, but modernize the kitchen, too. Yes, dear. I'm glad you approve. It's so easy, I don't see why everyone doesn't take advantage of the U. S. National's home improvement loan service. Well, no, dear, I hadn't really thought about that. I guess we'll just have to let it leak if it rains before Monday.

Greeks Wonder Where Their Building Fund Money Goes

By Sue Kelley

An issue which is widely discussed in bull sessions around OU's campus, especially Greek bull sessions, is "When do the Greeks at OU get to turn their building funds into buildings?"

The sororities at this campus are governed by both their individual and national organizations and the National Panhellenic Council. The fraternities are also answerable to their own national organization, and the National Interfraternity Council.

The National Panhellenic and Interfraternity Councils work directly with the president of the college on all major issues and the question of housing is in this category.

All four of the sororities on our campus pay regularly into local building funds and the members have been doing this since their particular group became part of their national organization.

Alpha Xi Delta members pay a percentage of their monthly dues into such a fund the first two years they are in the sorority. Members of Chi Omega do pay into a building fund but they were not at liberty to give details about it.

Sigma Kappa sorority puts a percentage of their monthly dues into a fund all the time they are in the group actively and Zeta Tau Alpha pays a dollar a month per person into a building fund.

The OU fraternities have much the same arrangement for a building fund.

The men of Lambda Chi Alpha pay a part of their monthly dues; Pi Kappa Alpha actively pay a dollar a month out of dues into a building fund; Sigma Phi Epsilon pays a dollar per month per man; Theta Chi also pays a percentage of their dues, and Tau Kappa Epsilon has just recently begun putting into a building fund.

President Bail had this to say on Greek housing, "Some of these days when the sororities and fraternities have enough money I'm sure they will build on campus. They will have to build lodges not houses and I think the groups should have individual cottages."

According to a letter President Bail wrote to the National Panhellenic he is willing to let the Greeks build in the near future depending on the money question.

President Bail said that the site talked about for buildings of this kind are the hill south of the women's P.E. hut and the land south of the football field.

Sue West, a senior in Zeta Tau Alpha, said, "I think we should have lodges and individual ones because if they build one big one as has been discussed, it would be a Greek student union and would split the University."

Darlene Utterback, a junior Sigma Kappa, said, "I don't mind paying into a building fund and never getting anything out of it because maybe even when my children go to college they will have a nice Sigma Kappa lodge."

A sophomore Alpha Xi Delta, Sandy Staub, said, "As long as we're putting money into a fund I think we should have something to show for it and I think it would bring the Greeks closer together."

Sandy Barnes, a freshman Zeta Tau Alpha, said, "I feel when you put money and faith toward a goal it's too bad when nothing comes of it."

The fraternity men also had their comments.

Terry Bernth, a junior Sigma Phi Epsilon, said, "I feel it's a privilege to be a Sig Ep and if I can leave my contribution to a building fund behind when I graduate that's fine with me."

A junior Tau Kappa Epsilon, Kenny Nelson, said, "As long as I'm fairly sure that there will be houses someday I don't mind paying into a building fund."

Frank Tapy, a senior Lambda Chi Alpha, said, "I'm all for houses or lodges but perhaps better discretion could have been exercised in the selection of sites thus far proposed."

Theta Chi sophomore, Lee Kallstrom, said, "I would like to see individual houses because it would add to the school spirit and bring more students to OU, I think."

Steve Gidley, Pi Kappa Alpha sophomore, said, "I think we should get dorms before houses but lodges would be fine to keep the Greeks more on campus."

Associate Dean of Students, Miss Elizabeth Hill, had this to say on the question, "The present arrangement for Greeks, particularly the women, will continue until 1963 at least and there are no current plans on the boards for sorority or fraternity housing as far as I know."

Indian Baseballers Host Drake Today

Virgil Yelkin's Omaha University baseball club will entertain Drake University this afternoon in search of its sixth straight win of the 1962 season. Starting time is 3 p.m.

The Indians chalked up wins number four and five with two seven-inning wins over St. Cloud Tuesday by 5-3 and 5-1.

Barry Miller and Steve Lipman limited the Minnesotans to a total of nine hits in the two contests. Miller, in gaining his third triumph, struck out 7 while giving up 6 hits. Lipman's win was his second.

The Indians jumped off to comfortable cushions in each game by scoring four times in the first inning.

Infielders Joe Neuberger and Ron Ludwig each had two RBIs during the afternoon.

South Dakota State became the second and third Indian scalps last week falling 4-3 and 13-8.

Ray Fehrman came home from third on a wild pitch in the Friday contest to give the Indians the one-run win. Lipman who relieved Sophomore Frank Pecha in the fourth got the win.

The Indians had a much easier time in the series finale pounding three Jackrabbit hurlers. Miller gained his second win in this contest but needed help from Mike Coughlin to preserve the triumph.

Yelkin also gave rookie Bernie Robinson the opportunity to work the last inning in the contest. Robinson gave up the three final State runs.

OU will end its eight-game home stand next Tuesday against Morningside. Starting time for the first contest is 2 p.m. The Indians split with the Maroons in two games last year.

The Indians will spend part of their Easter vacation competing in the Sunflower Easter Tournament at Emporia, Kansas Thursday and Friday, April 19 and 20, and will open Central Intercollegiate Conference play April 28 against Washburn.
